TANKS PUSH GERMANS BACK FROM VOLTURNO

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

THERE'S ONLY one point remaining to be settled in connection with the burning "second front" issue which the Russians have made the paramount question before the tripartite Allied conference in Moscow—and that's when the cross-channel invasion of France shall take place.

The Allied high command already has decided that there shall be such an operation—when the time seems right. Active preparations for this invasion—which will be in the nature of a coup de grace for Hitler—are continuing.

Talk in the camp of the Anglo-American Allies in the past few days has been emphasizing next spring as the favorable time for invasion. Truth or consequences? Famous Field Marshal Smuts of South Africa yesterday supported this theme in London by predicting that the grand assault will come next year.

Simultaneously a little dispatch from England announces the recent arrival of a large contingent of American troops—obviously invasion forces. And at the same time we learn that Premier Churchill now gives a card of greeting which is inscribed "to every American soldier who has left home to join the great forces now gathering in this island."

So preparations proceed apace—but that doesn't guarantee invasion in the near future. As remarked in this column before, the best we can say is that there's still time for the operation this year, although the season is late.

The western Allies certainly have justification for proceeding with circumspection in this dangerous adventure. Failure would be catastrophic.

ASSEMBLY of the colossal invasion forces with supplies and equipment is only the beginning of the problems. We had an illustration of that in miniature in the invasion of Dieppe last year, when close to half a force of 6,000 or more men—five-sixths of whom were Canadians—were killed, wounded or captured.

Still, valuable lessons were learned at Dieppe, and in the subsequent invasions of North Africa, Sicily and Italy. The Allies have much better forewarning for the French invasion than they have had before.

One threat, of course, lies in the fact that the great invasion fleet of barges and warships will be under intense fire of German land batteries, as well as all the bombers Hitler can muster. The recently published book "Combined Operations," British official story of the Commandos, reminds us of Nelson's dictum that "three guns in a well-constructed battery, properly placed, would beat off or destroy any ship in the world."

Another menace is mines—both sea and land. The employment of this defense against amphibious attacks has been developed to a fine point by the Germans.

Burglars Get Big Haul At Liverpool

EAST LIVERPOOL, Oct. 20.—The Max Laundry here was broken into last night by thieves who took the safe containing $1,000 in currency, $350 in checks and carted away liquor valued at $1,800. The burglars loaded the loot onto a truck parked at the rear of the building, police said.

Entrance was gained by forcing a rear door. Merchant police on their rounds at 5 a. m. today discovered the place had been entered.

LIQUOR ISSUE TO BE REVIVED

Council Agrees to Reconsider Ordinance On Tavern Closing

City council agreed last night to revive the liquor tavern closing ordinance which it defeated by a four to three vote two weeks ago.

A unanimous vote was given to a motion by Councilmen Fred Shafer and Harry Vincent to reconsider the request of the liquor dealers for a 12:15 a. m. closing hour and a Sunday beer sale ban.

Councilman Charles Rheutan, although voting "yes" on the motion, said he thought the issue for a closed incident and saw no necessity for bringing it up again.

Vincent, who voted against the measure two weeks ago, declared the ordinance had some merits and was worthy of reconsideration.

The measure probably will be re-written and presented to council for consideration at some future date.

BEN BERNIE DIES OF HEART AILMENT

(By Associated Press)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Oct. 20.—Ben Bernie, the old maestro of the stage, screen and radio, died at his apartment this morning after a long illness from a pulmonary affection with heart complications.

At his bedside were his wife, his son, Pvt. Jason Bernie of the U. S. army, his brother-manager, Herman Bernie, and the latter's wife.

The 52-year-old band leader was stricken with pleurisy while playing an engagement in Chicago last February. After a short period, he was discharged from the hospital and came to the west coast to fulfill entertainment engagements in war plants.

Soon after arriving here he suffered a relapse and for 11 weeks was confined to an oxygen tent. During most of the period his life was despaired of.

NAZI POSITION BEFORE SOVIET TROOPS GRAVE

Germans Attempt to Halt Red Army's Flanking Move In Dnieper

(By Associated Press)
MOSCOW, Oct. 20.—The whole German position inside the Dnieper river elbow was threatened today as harassed Nazi commanders hurled fresh divisions of men, tanks and artillery into the fight in an attempt to halt the Red army's flanking drive to the west of the river. The Russian's major breakthrough southeast of Kremenchuk has swept into 130 settlements and the railway junction of Pyatikhatka to outflank Dneprodzerzhinsk, 40 miles to the east, and Dnepropetrovsk, 70 miles to the east.

Pyatikhatka is at the junction of the main railway between Znamenko and Dnepropetrovsk and the running south to Krivoi Rog. Its capture leaves the Germans, but one line, through Krivoi Rog, to evacuate the whole Dnieper bend.

Enemy Situation Serious
This most recent Soviet advance actually has carried the Red army to a geographical position west of the Crimea. The German army southward of the Zaporozhe-Melitopol line is in a precarious position. Hitler's commanders have not yet decided whether to make a serious tactical situation since they were outmaneuvered and cut off in Stalin-grad.

Red Star said the Germans were counter-attacking violently in the Dnieper elbow. A Pravda dispatch said a considerable number of German bombers had been shifted here from the deep rear and western Europe. All indications are the Nazis want to stand and fight.

A second spot for the Germans on the long Russian front today was north of Kiev where in the face of furious counterattacks the Red army is bearing down upon Kiev, capturing Vyshgorod, six miles away.

Henry C. Cassidy, Associated Press war correspondent in Moscow, said advice from the Ukraine indicated the Germans had started huge demolitions in Kiev.

Forcible evacuation of Kiev's war-time population of 150,000 was also reported by Cassidy. According to the Russians, he said, civilians are being driven west along the road to Zhitomir in two groups, destined for slave labor camps in Germany.

Weaklings unable to walk are being shot without mercy, the Russians declared, adding that between 12,000,000 and 15,000,000 residents of the Ukraine were likely to be exterminated by the Germans before the end of the war.

COUNCIL TO MAP POST-WAR PLANS

Councilman Wentz Urges Solons To Formulate Plans for Future

City officials, with the aid of industrial and civic leaders, are expected to formulate a program of post-war planning regarding various municipal improvements as the result of an agreement reached by city council Tuesday night that just that sort of planning should be given consideration now.

The need of post-war planning was emphasized by Councilman Arch H. Wentz who listed a new city hall and waterworks development as "musts" projects.

It was agreed to hold a meeting of the various council committee leaders before calling a special meeting to which industrial and civic groups would be invited.

"Now is the time to lay the groundwork," Wentz declared in urging council to map post-war projects. "Salem should have plans and specifications for its projects drawn up now so that it will be ready when the war ends."

Street lighting system improvements and street paving projects also were listed by Wentz as post-war items.

Dinner was served at a table centered with a bowl of fruit and was in charge of Miss Elsie Thomas and Mrs. Grace Grimes. The business session was in charge of the president, Mrs. Irene McKee.

REPORT FIFTH OF FUND GOAL

Opening Day Brings $7,911 To Salem War Chest; Goal Is $40,600

One-fifth of the Salem Community War Chest goal of $40,600 was raised in the first day of the campaign, as workers reported Tuesday night a total of $7,911 in subscriptions.

In announcing the first day's results, Campaign Chairman T. E. Miller expressed satisfaction with the early efforts but warned that the goal is far from sight.

"It will require even greater efforts if we are to reach our objective by the end of the week," Miller said.

While the slogan of the campaign is to "double your last year's subscriptions," in effect it will take even more than that, for hundreds of young men who have been contributors are now in the armed service and consequently there are fewer to draw from in this drive.

Many of the team workers reported that subscriptions had been doubled and in a few cases more than doubled, and they were hopeful today that all others to be contacted before the drive ends will do likewise.

The campaign this year is two-fold: $20,000 for Salem's part in the National War Fund, and $20,600 for Salem welfare agencies which are a part of the Community Fund association.

Design Lapel Pins for Discharged Soldiers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Honorary discharged service men and women soon will be authorized to wear government issued service buttons, Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) of the senate naval affairs committee announced today.

He said the joint Army-Navy personnel board had approved the lapel buttons after he pointed out that men of draft age who had been discharged from the armed services for physical reasons often were embarrassed because they could not wear uniforms.

Lecturer Discusses Labor And Negro's Role In World

Charging that the church has failed in the proper guidance of labor in this country and that it must not fail to take an active, vigorous part in correcting the existing situation of the Negro, Charles A. Wells, lecturer and author, discussed "Labor and the Coming Revolution in America" in the fourth of a series of talks at the Methodist church.

A capacity crowd, which has marked every program to date, heard the world-traveler and newspaperman urge Christians to become informed on labor questions through labor publications and to have available in the Sunday school lesson material to teach young people labor's difficulties.

Not only the general public, but the church and pastors, have failed to understand labor, resulting in the repudiation of the church by labor which is trying to solve its grave problems alone without the help of the church or its leaders, Wells said.

Preserve What Is Left Of Our Form Of Government Is Judge's Plea In Talk Here

Citing bureaucratic trends away from the original concepts of our Constitution, Probate Judge Homer W. Hammond told the Travelers club members, at their meeting Tuesday afternoon in the public library, that the remedy lies in a change of thinking, or in a resumption of thinking by our people.

"May it not be too much to hope for a re-dedication of the constitutional guarantee of state responsibility, which for so long a time made the blessings of liberty secure," he said as he urged his audience to resolve to do their part to preserve what is left of our form of government and if possible to regain some of the lost.

Defend Constitution, Is Plea
Judge Hammond was speaking on the subject, "Our Constitution," and he closed with the plea that the club members do all in their power to defend and protect it.

Referring to the spreading bureaucratic control over the daily lives of the people, he said:

"Your welfare is the chief concern of these beloved bureaucracies who would control all of your actions from the cradle to the grave. Social gains, labor reforms and other welfare activities are the magic terms used to get the people to surrender the last vestige of that God given liberty of the American people. When will we realize that totalitarianism is always attained through the welfare approach?"

"These conditions are the result of the complete apathy of our people to all matters of government. The remedy is to get back to the constitution and the God that directed its framers."

The judge then listed five cardinal rules set down by the constitution:

First, that all power comes from the people. They are the masters; the government and its officers merely their servants.

Second, that no man or set of men shall enjoy the power of the oriental despot, that permits him to make the law, to decide whether it has been violated and then to execute judgment upon the violator.

Third, that the government can exercise no powers except those expressly granted.

Fourth, that the government can exercise no powers except those expressly granted.

Fifth, that the government can exercise no powers except those expressly granted.

Stolen Kiss Costs Man Life Term In Prison

COLUMBUS, Oct. 20.—A single kiss today cost 24-year-old Arthur Hughes of Columbus a life sentence in Ohio penitentiary.

Hughes pleaded guilty in common pleas court to entering the home of Marian Will, 22, during the early morning hours of Aug. 18, creeping into her bedroom and kissing the young school teacher. She screamed, the intruder fled.

"The women of this community must be protected, especially in times like these when so many husbands are away in the armed services," Judge Myron B. Gesaman declared in pronouncing sentence.

Hughes was identified through fingerprints left on the window of Miss Will's apartment.

Fleeing Nazis Fire Houses, Kill Civilians

(By Associated Press)
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 20.—Threatened on their left flank by a swift American drive that cut forward five miles, the Germans fell back today from the Volturmo valley to a fresh mountain line, it was announced, leaving behind them one of the war's worst scenes of destruction.

The Germans are retreating to establish a strong new mountain line anchored on the high Massico ridge and the town of Mondragone, six miles north of the Volturmo river mouth, and extending 27 miles north-east to Venafro.

Official dispatches from Fifth army headquarters said the Nazis were burning houses, shooting civilians, destroying livestock, tearing up railroad, dynamiting roads and firing haystacks to provide smoke screens to cover their retreat.

The devastation of the countryside and wiping out of civilians as well as their farms was the most complete yet encountered as the German fury towards the Italians reached a new peak.

The new enemy line is made up of a series of high, difficult ridges intersected by deep valleys through which pass the main highways from Naples to Rome.

Driving forward six miles north and northeast of Capua, the Americans eliminated the Germans last hope of making a stand anywhere south of the Mondragone-Venafro line.

The advance carried the Fifth army into the towns of Pignataro, six miles north of Capua, Roccaromana, five miles northwest of Pignataro, and the highway junction and town of Dragonara, two and a half miles northwest of Alagnano.

These advances put them 11 miles north of the Volturmo.

Germans Resist British
On the Adriatic, the Eighth army captured Petacciatto, eight miles north of Termoli, but Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's troops were meeting greatly-increased resistance as Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring made a strong defensive stand.

A German counter attack west of Monte Clifone, whose capture by the Eighth army was announced yesterday, was repulsed.

Allied fighter bombers, continuing their assault on Nazi airfields, strafed the Viterbo and Tarquinia airbases, destroying many grounded enemy planes.

In a lightning assault on bridges American liberators, the type that bombed the Ploesti oil fields in Rumania two months ago, completely knocked out the vital Nazi railway from Ancona to Pescara along the Adriatic coast.

Medium bombers attacked Proconino, Terracina and Bracciano on the Fifth army front while light bombers swarmed over the entire area just behind the Fifth and Eighth army fronts, attacking motor transport, bridges and railroad junctions.

The drive north from the Capua area to Pignataro put the Americans astride the road fork from which two main highways run to Rome, slightly over 90 airline miles distant.

One of these—the famed Appian way—runs in a westerly direction through a narrow gap in the new Nazi mountain line to Gaeta, and the other—the Cassinaway—northward through Cassino. It also passes through the narrow valley dominated by the German-held hills.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

A murmur of voices came from the opposite side of the hall and as started toward the dining room see who was lining there in the dark. I heard Greg speaking with a strange fury.

"I've had all I'm going to take! I and more. That's final."

"And how about me?" That was the first time I had heard him speak.

I turned away from the door. I didn't want to hear any more. Their voices were heavy with hate. Greg growled: "You've been warned. Don't say I didn't give you a chance."

I almost bumped into Mrs. Powers at the living-room door.

"I'm going back for liquors," she said.

"They're in the dining-room buffet," I told her.

Pete stumbled into the hall pulling at his cummerbund and looking bit dazed.

"Mind if I go home?" he asked.

Suddenly I saw Nancy coming out of the living room.

"I'll take him home," she said coldly. "After all, he's my husband."

"Worse luck! Why don't you say 'Hello' to him?"

"He's my husband, worse luck! That's what you think. Why not say 'Hello'?"

I could hear Pete's drunken drivel as they went away together. It was an ugly swan song.

dependent I could be—that I hadn't been able to wait.

"He won't miss much if he's late," Henny said gravely. "The party's a washout. Mama's got the jitters, so you'd better scam. It's ten past five now and you can't make it before half-past."

Afterwards, when so much hung on the exact hour at which all the rest of the day's events took place, Aunt Carrie and Henny could both testify what time it was when I started down Havenhurst road.

That walk took me past the Everard gate which is only a few hundred yards beyond ours. As I approached it I heard the murmur of voices beyond the hedge.

There wasn't any escaping the loud petulance of Pete's: "For the love of heaven, cut it out! I know what I owe you—"

Then old lady Knowlton's voice, misty and shaken—by incredible passion: "But you don't realize how I love you! You've never known. Perhaps you don't want to know."

I was in front of the wide gateway by then. I glanced in. All in one quick moment my eyes registered the details of a picture against which my mind protested every time I had to reconstruct it later.

Pete Everard was lounging against his roadster. The engine was running and the hood was pointing away from the gate as if he'd just driven in. Mrs. Knowlton stood before him, a frail chiffon figure, imponderable as usual. Her hands were twisting at the lapels of his flannel blazer, her face was pushed up under his. I became aware of all this in the moment before I pulled my eyes away and hurried along down the dusty road.

Pete's voice followed: "Stop mauling me! I've got to go in and dress for Pam Drury's party."

The motor stopped humming. Then Mrs. Knowlton's words floated after me: "Pam! That Jezzebel! I won't let her have you!"

I hurried to get away from the sound of that voice. The heat blazed down from the sky and rose in waves from the road. I was glad when Mr. Riorden caught up with me just as I reached the Drummond gate. I didn't even mind his asking me whether I thought I could really get away from him.

"The day appears to be full of a number of things there's no escaping," I said with a slightly uneasy laugh.

When I came down to Sunday breakfast and the aftermath of last night's ghastly dinner, the servant problem was the only one I expected to deal with that day. Wing introduced it promptly. He served apology and accusation along with the scrambled eggs and sausages.

"Wing very sorry he get sick last night, Miss Hilda. He added blandly: 'But he no drunk. He never get drunk. He get poison.'"

Sister Peggy pounced on that. "If there were poison in the wine, why didn't anybody else get sick?"

"Maybe they do. Mr. Pete look pretty sick. Maybe poison only in one glass. Mr. Pete get some. Wing maybe drink some Mr. Pete's. Wing get poison too. Maybe Chan Foo trying make Wing sick so get job. How I know? Maybe Josephine play trick Wing and Chan Foo. She don't like Oriental boys."

Wing went on doggedly: "Maybe Miss Peggy play joke when she change place cards so she sit next Mr. Pete. Maybe Mr. Greg on account he hate Mr. Pete plenty. Lots people can do."

"Cut the Charlie Chan stuff!" Peggy said curtly.

I gave Wing a warning. "You're in probation, Miss Drury needs you to help at her party this afternoon and if you behave yourself and stay perfectly sober, we'll forget last night."

Perhaps Aunt Carrie hadn't heard any of that, for now she added her bit. "Mrs. Powers says you drained all the drogs of the glasses last night, not just Mr. Everard's—"

Wing broke in vindictively. "Josephine very sly snoop! She think she too good for her place."

Of course she thought so. So I didn't blame her when she begged off going to Pam's that afternoon, although it was for another reason.

"It's my day off," she reminded me. "And when you engaged me I made a point of it that I'd do any kind of housework but wait on table. I hope you don't think I'm disobliging, but I've planned to visit my grandchild at camp this afternoon and to go to a picture in New York this evening with Mrs. Dillworthy, head of WKTB's personnel department."

I said I was meeting Miss Drury down on the beach in an hour and I'd tell her Wing would be Glenn's only contribution to the Beach Cottage staff. "So run along and have a good day and remind Rosemary I'm going to write a cute little part for her into the show before long."

Josephine shook her head. "I want the child to forget radio. I'm having her work to help support us and now I'm working here she doesn't have to."

"Good!" I'd had enough of the domestic problem. "Now run along to New York and your Rosemary."

Josephine said she'd leave after lunch and smiled when I told her I'd get lunch. "Have you forgotten you're going to New London with Mr. Riorden and Miss Peggy's off for a sail with Mr. Drummond?"

"Merriest goodness, I had forgotten!"

A gentleman like Mr. Riorden's worth remembering," she said unexpectedly. "Then even more unexpectedly. And he's worth looking your best for. I've laid out your white sharkskin with rose-colored accessories. That'll be perfect for your trip and if you don't get back in time to change, you'll be all right for Miss Drury's party. Have a good day of it and don't worry about your Aunt Carrie. I've planned a nice lunch for her."

I thanked Josephine and wore white for the trip with Mr. Riorden. He said I looked like a spray of apple blossoms; then settled down to such practical matters as gear-shift and clutches.

I told him we'd better get home a time to rest up a bit before Pam's party. That was one thing we didn't argue about. So he brought me home in plenty of time to dress and to mull over the impression that square-jawed Dennis Riorden intended to teach me to drive a car whether I liked it or not.

It left me with a distaste for all dominant people and in no mood to approve when I came down to the terrace and discovered Commodore Swanton calling on Aunt Carrie.

Swanton was playing backgammon like a pair of old cronies. Henny Drury was looking on as cozy as a scene of a Christmas card and just about as convincing.

The child said her mother had sent her over to ask. I quote and I suppose Henny did too: "Where is Hilda and why doesn't she come over and help with the cocktails?"

I said I'd run along and left a message—with a relish for showing the bossy Mr. Riorden how in-drowned it out. He sounded as if he had been running.

"I'll be over soon's I can," he said unevenly. "But be a good scout and tell Pam I had started for Beach Cottage before you phoned."

"But how about the waffle iron?" Put Pete on the wire so I can ask him to bring it."

"I've gone. I can't deliver messages. Ring up again in five minutes. I don't want to get into a row with Pam. I've had enough rows."

He hung up. I dialed the Everard number again in five minutes and no one answered. That was one of the things I didn't tell the police.

I kept on trying to reach Pete for a long time. But he didn't answer—then or ever.

Synthetic Tire Defects Shown In Patrol Tests

COLUMBUS, Oct. 20 — Current synthetic tires contain too many defects to render them satisfactory for hard usage, asserts Col. Lynn Black, superintendent of the state highway patrol. Four makes of synthetic tires have been tested on 60 highway patrol automobiles during the past 60 days. Black said no treads have been worn out "simply because other defects in the tires show up or the tread comes loose long before it shows signs of being worn."

He said the tires might be used for private use if driven at low speeds.

LABOR AND NEGRO DISCUSSION TOPIC

of 60 to 80 million people who have no economic security and no democratic traditions who will be prepared to follow the loudest voice which makes the biggest promises," Wells predicted.

"This is no guess," he stated flatly. "It is inevitable fact. It must be a part of the church's job to see that the loudest voice is the one of Christian tolerance and understanding, not of class strife and racial hatred."

Denounces Training Program

Touching upon the situation of the Negro today, Wells denounced the policy which has led the government to train 500,000 Negro soldiers to the finest degree of combat perfection, only to keep them out of the fight, doing sanitation and behind-the-lines work. Only one Negro flying unit has seen actual service and has now been disbanded, ostensibly for further training, he pointed out.

He cited incidents of this war which indicate the government's willingness to permit the Negro to do only the menial tasks of this war. "He is not even allowed to die, except ignobly, for his country," Wells commented.

"One of the outstanding heroes of Pearl Harbor was a Negro messman aboard the U. S. S. Arizona, whose courage and quick thinking saved the life of his commander and brought him the unstinted admiration of the men serving with him.

U. S. censors struck out the newsmen's stories of the heroic Negro, Wells charged.

Such incidents have aroused the smoldering resentment of the Negro and until conditions are improved, that resentment will continue to grow. Such teachings cannot be tolerated in a democracy, the speaker asserted. "Either the educated, alert, able Negro must be given his just place in society, or we must burn his schools, put the already educated Negroes in concentration camps, and send the rest back into the ignorance and deprivation we kept them in too long. The issue can no longer be sidestepped."

Let you down?

NEVER!

WE'D RATHER lose a sale than lose a customer—rather say "Sorry we don't have it," than sell you something that might "let you down." We have welcomed some of the wartime developments in men's clothes and accessories because they conserve materials without sacrificing comfort, appearance or wear. But if and when our tests and experience prove that any change or substitution will result in dissatisfaction, we won't offer it.

Women Bowlers Pick Committee Members

The annual Salem Women's Bowling association meeting was held last evening at the Masonic Temple with Mrs. James Hassey presiding in the absence of Miss Minnie Shum.

A war committee was appointed which includes Mrs. Gladys Rowland, chairman of the Adrian league; Mrs. Dorothy Gray of the Washingtonville league and Mrs. Leora Arnold of the Masonic league. It was requested that all members engaged in war work report to the committee for compiling a report of war activities for the association.

Plans were made for continuing last year's War bond drive to aid the Women's International Bowling Congress in purchasing another ambulance plane.

LITTLE BROWN JUG AT STAKE AGAIN

(By Associated Press)

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 20.—Big Bill Daley goes hunting Saturday for the little brown jug on the other side of the fence, and it's a good bet he'll thunder to football history as the only player who helped both Minnesota and Michigan to the prized trophy.

"It will have to be just another game," said Bustin' Bill, powerhouse fullback who has roared to 531 yards in four games for Michigan. "I look at it just as though it were an intra squad scrimmage. There won't have to be any qualms about how hard I hit my old teammates or how hard they hit me."

Big Bill will be looking across the line Saturday at half a dozen former buddies—Quarterback Bill Garman, Halfback Wayne (Red) Williams, Guards Bob Grainger and Ed Lechner and Tackles Paul Mitchell and Mike Rapko. Garman's dropkick beat Michigan last year for Minnesota's ninth successive victory in the series.

Daley wasn't too happy over his last season as a Gopher. "I got banged up pretty badly in several games," he explained, "and it spoiled what I thought would be my last college season."

He left the implication that being injured is unpardonable at Minnesota.

Coach Fritz Crisler of Michigan recalls that Daley was an extremely healthy specimen when he scooted half the length of the field for a touchdown in Minnesota's 16 to 14 triumph over the Wolverines last fall.

This unique battle against Minnesota may be Daley's last start for Michigan. The fall school term ends Saturday and he may be advanced to midshipman schools.

"If this is going to be my last game, I'd really like it to be one I can remember," declared the 206-pounder from St. Cloud, Minn.

Zines Hurls Camp Team To Victory

Corp. Johnny Zines, former Salem softball hurler, is home on furlough from Camp Shelby, Miss., where he pitched his team to the 6th Division championship with 17 victories and one defeat to his credit.

He brought home with him a gold ball and trophy to attest to his performances.

Johnny, one of the leading twirlers in the district, pitched for the Recreations here and also for the General Fireproofing team of Youngstown before his induction into the army seven months ago.

He is now home on a 15-day furlough.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Next week's Sammy Angott-Slugger White fight for the N.B.A. lightweight title will be the first outdoor night bout on the west coast since Pearl Harbor and Promoter Joe Lynch is talking hopefully about a $50,000 gate.

George Munger, Penn. coach, says that if Bob Odell has missed a tackle in two years, he didn't see it, either on the field or in the game movies.

Rattlesnake Matheson, Detroit Lions guard, claims that playing football is his vacation—even after five years in the big league.

Wonder what the W.M.C. which okayed the Bears, would say in that case? Word from the west is that Dick Bartell will manage the Oakland Pacific Coast League club next season.

Carl Hubbell (back home in Oklahoma): "When someone asks me where the Giants finished, I just tell him we finished in St. Louis and I was glad it was the end of the season."

After appearing in two games, Bob Fenimore, the Oklahoma Aggie's 17-year-old freshman halfback, was called the best runner, best passer, best kicker and best pass defender the cowboys have had in some years.

Then, not satisfied with all those superlatives, he came down with the worst charley horse the Aggie's athletic heads could remember any athlete suffering.

You can blame Dick

Selfish Leadership Strangling Atlantic Charter, Wells Says

Addressing Rotarians at their luncheon meeting yesterday at the Memorial building, Charles E. Wells, writer and lecturer, declared "the American people face the danger of this war ending in disillusionment as did the first World War because selfish United Nations leadership is slowly trying to strangle the Atlantic charter."

"The Atlantic charter," Wells said, "was the product of our despair, formed when the democracies were on their knees, when they had lost every battle and the world was indifferent to their plight. The doctrine outlined in the Atlantic charter was designed to bring the world's sympathy to our side, and to give the American people something to fight for."

Now that the democracies are no longer on their knees and are assured of victory," the speaker claimed, "elements in the leadership of the Allied cause seek to destroy the strength which the charter gives."

American ideals of freedom and equality are so far ahead of any other nation in the world that the American people face bitter disillusionment in this war's settlement unless the contributing factors can be eliminated.

England's statesmen are not yet ready to give up imperialism and America is not ready to give up the ideals she proclaimed in the charter, ideals in which Lincoln so firmly believed. The thinking people, the great minds of England, are totally opposed to the policy of imperialism which has brought England to her present position, as great American minds are against this country's acceptance of an imperialistic policy to replace the ideals Americans believe they are fighting for, he said.

Lincoln, asserted Wells, is still the greatest influence on American thought. The freedom and equality of man he upheld guides American thinking. As long as his faith continues to guide, Americans will follow their ideals.

The black rail is the tiniest of the rail bird species.

SAVE GOVERNMENT IS PLEA OF JUDGE

pressed given to it by the constitution which the people have adopted.

Fourth, that every locality shall have the right to look after its own affairs free from outside influence.

Fifth, in order that these rules may be protected and enforced, courts have the right to say that any act of congress, or legislature, or president, or governor, or other person whomsoever that contravenes the constitution, is null and void.

Rule of Equality In Danger

"The constitution lays down two great fundamental rules. The first is the rule of equality; the second is the rule of freedom."

The speaker then declared that the rule of equality is in dire danger today.

"Federal regulations are restricting and impairing the activities of the multiple of children so unfortunate as to require the forms of categorical assistance that a paternalistic government offers as a sop to its sycophants, for the purpose of making them dependent upon the public benefactor."

"The rules and regulations adopted by the Social Security board for the administration of the Aid to Dependent Children program very clearly demonstrate that the chief object of this program is to prevent these children from becoming self-supporting and to retain them throughout childhood as dependents, thereby creating pobs, developing further pressure from above."

Strength Is In The Home

"The actions of those charged with the enforcement of these rules and regulations clearly demonstrate complete disregard for all officials, state and county, connected with this program. It is definitely a case of master and slave. The rule of equality has in the last three decades lost much of its true meaning and today is facing its greatest danger."

"Government has its duties to perform, but it is to accomplish its purpose, but it never was intended to supplant the home, the church and the forces of education and religion."

"Righteousness is in the American home; the character of American citizenship is in the home; the safety of our institutions is in the home; the security of America is in the home. We shall do well to work out in the home, and in the social life of which it is a part, that type of moral fibre which makes the strength of a nation."

The War Today

The English channel along the French shore is likely to be filled with mines. Mine sweepers will precede the fleet, but many barges laden with troops, and many warships, will be destroyed. The land mines are even a greater menace, for the Germans are following the highly effective scheme of whole-sale mining of every beach which might be used as a bridge-head.

The Hitlerites have every strategic point along the whole channel invasion coast heavily fortified. Dieppe and other landings have demonstrated that these defenses provide for intensive fire of all calibers, from big guns to rifles, and this can be concentrated on vital landing points. Barbed wire lines the shores, and tank barriers are terribly formidable.

Whatever way you look at it, the invasion is going to be a costly thing unless Hitler is rendered virtually impotent in advance. What the Anglo-American Allies have to figure out in answering Moscow is whether the present status of the war warrants taking such a chance right now.
